Ahmad Haddad: Portfolio

Director and cinematographer, founder of FAII HOUSE (Irbid, Jordan). Contact: ahmad000haddad@gmail.com, +962 79 925 6345.

Practice

I started in photography in 2014 and have worked in cinema since 2018, independently since 2017, on films, documentaries and commercial work in Jordan, the UAE, Saudi Arabia, Tunisia, Morocco and Mauritania. I work as director, cinematographer, editor and colorist. My photograph was published in Shot magazine (issue 34, 2016), and I was featured in a Jordan TV interview about directorial work (Youm Jdeed, 2019).

Selected films and recognition

• Bakeer: cinematographer, editor and colorist. Official nomination in the Arab Short Films category; official selection of the AIU Kuwait International Film Festival.

• Ezwitti: second prize, Al Jazeera Documentary Competition 2022.

• Error 017: Best Film Award at the Mentor Arabia competition; winner at the Plural+ Youth Video Festival, the United for Film Peace Festival and the Marrakech International Film Festival.

• Road safety film for youth: first prize, Youth Category, Global Youth Coalition for Road Safety.

• Shillin: participant, Karama Festival. Arab Monitor Youth Empowerment Films and Songs Competition, Lebanon.

• Documentaries on people and places in Jordan, and commercial and television work across the region (see the portfolio links).

Working method

Observational and close to people and places, with a small crew and the consent of every person filmed. Tools I use: Sony, Canon and Nikon cameras, DaVinci Resolve and Adobe Premiere Pro.

Residency Proposal: Sixi AiR 2027

Theme 01, Flux and Imprints: Contemporary Echoes of Migration History

Working title: The Same Doorway. A short documentary (10 to 15 minutes) and a small set of printed stills.

Motivation

I live in Irbid, a city in northern Jordan whose neighbourhoods were shaped by families arriving from other places at different times. I grew interested in how a family's origin stays in a city as small things: a word, a recipe, a name on a shop, a door that is kept the same. Sixi's call asks artists to look at the tension between archives, oral histories and personal memory. That is the question I want to bring to Nanjing, a city that has received people from elsewhere for a very long time, and to look at it as someone arriving from outside.

Concept

I would film three to four residents of Nanjing whose families came to the city from somewhere else, whether from another province or from abroad, and who agree to take part. Each person is filmed at one doorway of their daily life (a home entrance, a shop, a workshop) and tells, in their own words, what their family brought with them and what remained. The spoken memory is set beside an object or a family photograph that the person chooses, and beside the place as it looks today. The film does not explain history; it lets the gap between the archive and the remembered voice stay visible. In the last section I place my own arrival, as a Jordanian filmmaker from Irbid, beside theirs.

Residency plan (about 12 weeks)

• Weeks 1 to 3: walk and listen. Meetings arranged with the museum's help, visits to neighbourhoods, archives and community spaces; find the participants; agree consent and what they wish to show.

• Weeks 4 to 8: filming of the interviews and places, with English-Mandarin translation from the museum team. Photographs of the doorways and chosen objects.

• Weeks 9 to 11: editing and colour in the loft studio; subtitles in English and Chinese with help from the team.

• Week 12: open studio and final presentation: the film on a screen, with 6 to 8 printed stills and the participants' words beside them. A selection of prints and a copy of the film would be donated to Sixi Museum, as the call asks.

Materials, equipment and space

I bring my own compact camera kit and an editing laptop. I would ask the museum for help only with printing the stills and a screen for the final presentation. I prefer the private loft studio, because it doubles as an editing room.

Period and language

Preferred period: Autumn 2027 (September to November), which leaves enough time for visa processing; Spring 2027 (March to May) is possible if the response and visa allow. My working language is English; I do not speak Mandarin, and I would learn basic phrases before arriving and rely on the museum's translation during interviews.

Capability

I have directed and shot documentaries and short films for more than eight years, in several countries. I am over 18, in good health and able to complete the full residency.
